Fire destroyed the barn on the farm residence is occupied by Mr. Tulip and family who have lived there the last three years. The barn was valued at $800 and was insured for $400.

Virginia Park dock.

Manager De Pree, of the Zeeland nine, has not covered the $100 put up by the Holland fans for a game between Zeeland and Holland. He sent a proposition to the Grand Rapids Democrat to the effect that if Holland would consent to play in Allegan or Grand Haven and agree to an equal division of the gate receipts Zeeland would play for any amount. "Any amount" evidently means nothing, as thus far Zeeland has put up no money.
Holland now offers to play for $100 a side and the entire gate receipts, but Zeeland still says "nay."

After the Memorial Day exercises at the cemetery Major Scranton Circle, its honorary members, the Spanish War Soldiers Sons of Veterans, and the band went to the K. of P. Hall where they enjoyed a good supper.
After prayer by Dr. Mabbs remarks were made by veterans Weaver, Nies, Wilms, Grant, Hooper and others.
Mr. Holly told some of his funny stories. The president of the circle and many other ladies were called on and responded with speeches. John D. Nies Jr. spoke in behalf of the sons of Veterans and Wm. Cox and other Spanish war boys spoke of their respect and gratitude to these friends, the Civil war soldiers and the mothers wives and sisters who so nobly had stood by them. All went home feeling as the Spanish war boys expressed it, that they had properly and beautifully observed Decoration Day.

The preliminary examination of States McCoy, was held in Justice
Pagelson's court at Grand Haven Tuesday afternoon. States was on hand accompanied by his father-in-law, Mr. Parks, and his attorney, Perle Fouch of Allegan. W. I. Lillie was also present for the defense.

Samuel H. Metcalf, the Grand Rapids undertaker, took the stand. His testimony amounted to very little and did not materially aid the prosecution in establishing a case. When he had concluded, the prosecution announced that the only other witness subpoenaed to appear, Albert Whitney of Jamestown, had failed to come. Messrs.
Lillie and Fouch urged against further adjournment, but after a long argument the examination was postponed to 9 a. m. to-day. Whitney, the witness who failed to appear is a Jamestown farmer. Hump Jackson worked for him last summer before going to McCoy's. What his testimony will amount to is not known.

Representative Lugers, whose name is attached to the normal school bill, is serving a second term in the house from the first district of Ottawa county. He was born in Allegan county in 1853 and was educated in the normal schools of Otsego and Wayland. He taught school 17 years and is now interested in the Scott-Lugers Lumber company, of which he is secretary. Mr. Lugers has been prominent in local republican politics and has been honored several times with positions of trust. He held the offices of supervisor, town clerk, school inspector, and justice of the peace at various times in his township before being elected to the legislature. His principal speech in the present legislature was made on the normal school bill and it was so effective and replete with statistics that he received many compliments from his colleagues.—G.
B. Herald.

The game at Zeeland yesterday afternoon between the Zeeland club and the Grand Rapids High school was one of the best exhibitions of ball playing ever seen in this part of the country.
Both teams played fast ball and kept the fans in a frenzy of excitement until the last inning. Zeeland was shut out, the score being 2 to 0 in favor of Grand Rapids. Manager Van Dam, of the Hope College nine, was on the grounds and so pleased was he with the playing of the Grand Rapids boys that he arranged for a game between Grand Rapids and Hope to be played on the college diamond tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Tickets have been issued for this game and are now on sale at Con De Pree's drug store and Dr. Schouten's drug store. They are so arranged that they can be fastened to the lapel of the coat and those not wearing tickets will be approached by a collector on the grounds.
There will be no game this afternoon as the Zeeland club cancelled its date with the Hope college club.

FRIDAY, May 31.

"Patriotism."

MEMORIAL DISCOURSE DELIVERED BY FORRE A. C. VAN BAALTE, PASTOR, G.
A. R. ON SUNDAY, MAY 26, 1901
IN THE THIRD REFORMED CHURCH, BY REV. PROF.
HENRY E. DOSKER, D. D.

Text: "If I forget thee O Jerusalem let my right hand forget its cunning. Let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth, if I remember thee not, if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy." Ps. 137:3.

There is desperate longing and desperate love in this text. The cry of a breaking heart and the outburst of a hot flame from the buried embers of patriotism. Jerusalem was but a remembrance, smoked and weed-grown ruins, ghastly yawning caverns, where the palaces of the king and the nobles had been; a great desolation and an ominous silence, where the hum of a multitudinous life had sounded; the howl of the hyena and the hooting of the owl, where the stately priest chanted the psalms of the king; the strong city laid low, the impregnable walls leveled to the very rocks, which supported them, all its greatness forgotten, all its glory vanished. Such was Jerusalem.

And the mocking oppressors chafed the weeping Jews, weeping by the rivers of Babylon, and demanded a song, a song of Zion.

A song of Zion in a strange land! The very thought sweeps the poet's memory toward the land and the city of his love and thus the cry of anguish is born, which is one of the finest exhibits of Biblical patriotism.

From Genesis to Revelation the S.S. are full of it, the Patriarchs exhibited the virtue, the law inculcated it, the prophets taught it, the saints practiced it—nay Christ himself, the perfect God-man and the perfect Jew, re-echoed the wail of my text, when he wept and cried over the city of God.

Now what is the bearing of all this on Memorial day and on this specific service?

What was the aim of the founders of this day?

A perennial funeral service for our heroic dead? In part—yes. But above and beyond that a holier aim still. The memory of our soldier-dead was to be a means, rather than an end, for all coming generations. And that holy and abiding aim was to be the arousal of patriotism in the hearts of men, deep as the sea, high as the mountains, wide as history. This idea is not modern nor is it strictly American. The laws of Solon already said—"Let the father have the privilege of bestowing on that son a funeral eulogy, who died fighting valiantly in the field. He who dies while fighting, with undaunted courage in the front of the battle, shall have an annual harangue spoken to his honor."

Let PATRIOTISM be our topic.

1. What is it?

One of the benevolent virtues.

a. Its nature.

Whom shall fully define it. It clusters about the home and the family and it leaps from the graves of the fathers. Like the tender blush of the grape, which is destroyed in the handling, patriotism loses by its definition. It penetrates deeper than any definition can sound, it rests on something unutterable and incomprehensible. It attaches itself to "institutions, in which the spirit of our country lives, without being uttered in words, and involuntarily takes possession of man's mind." He who betrays it is a degenerate, we stamp him—a traitor. It affects the child and the gray beard the stout and the sage, the rich and the poor alike. Like Hadad the Edomite, it causes us to say, though we live in luxury at Faras court—"How belittled me depart that I may go to my own country." It enhances the beauty of the land of our birth and casts a mystic glamour about it. It beautifies the wilderness, it makes the rock bound coast an Eden, and thrills the soul as nothing else can do.

"The Ethiopian imagines that God made the sands and the desert, whilst angels made the rest of the world. The Arabian tribe of Quadelin think that the sun shines for them alone; the Caribbees deem their country a paradise, and themselves alone worthy of the name of men."

Study closely the national hymns and note their refined selfishness. But that same glance will reveal behind and beyond this unseemly egotism, the tender form of love. Patriotism is universal, an apparently inborn trait of humanity, differently expressed in different nations, but ever the source of sacrifice and self-surrender.

b. Its relation to religion.

Since all human life is divine in its origin, and our interrelations as men ultimately rest on and are defined by this divine origin the relation between religion and patriotism is self-evident.

Whether among heathen nations, where the ray of original light is deflected or among Christian nations, where it is reflected—the religious man is always the intensest patriot. The blatant infidel may boast of his patriotism, in its finest fiber it lacks the strength of the added support of religious enthusiasm. The fanatic Mohammedans were well nigh invincible in battle on account of their gurgling war-cry "La lla Illa Alla!"

Says Dr. Parker—"Take history through and through and it will be found that the men and women who have most devoutly and honestly feared God, have done most to defend and save the countries, in which they lived. They have made little noise, they have got up no open air demonstrations, they have done little or nothing in the banner and trumpet line, and have had to skill in getting up torch-light meetings; but their influence has silently penetrated the national life."

And I take you to witness, veterans of the Civil War, whether the "good boys," the "pious fellows" who carried a bible in their knapsacks and read it by the campfire and were not ashamed to confess Christ before you, in the abandonment of the campaign, —whether they fell back in the charge and blanching at the rattle of doom in front and were last in the breach or needing the prodding of the officers sword from behind to make them do their duty. You know it as I do and you say—never. They were better patriots and cooler soldiers and more desperately in earnest in war as in peace, because they knew God's eye was upon them, Washington and McCallan and Lee and Stonewall Jackson, Lincoln and Garfield, the men of old and the men of today, who believed in God and trusted in Christ, found in that religion the firm substratum of patriotism, it made them men of marble and of steel, patriots by the grace of God.

c. How does it manifest itself?

Patriotism begins at home. It is founded, whenever it is true gold, on the sanctity of the marriage tie, on the love of wife and children and parents and home. The Anarchist rejects law and therefor is a stranger to patriotism. The nerves of his better life and of his deeper being have been severed. He became the incarnation of egotism and hence, with his country, also forever lost the virtue of patriotism.

That was an affecting scene, when, at the beginning of the seven years war, Maria Theresa, the queen of Hungary, rose before the diet of her Austrian empire and in mute appeal lifted up her son, three weeks old. Then it was that the dery Magyars rose up as one man and, brandishing their swords, broke out in the war cry, which was to resound through all Europe—"Let us die for our king!"

The child's mother's arm had stirred their patriotic passions and had broken up the fountains of the deep.

Patriotism exhibits itself therefor primarily in the love of home and wife and children and of our fellow men and of our laws and their maintenance and of our civic institutions. Therefor it involves the sacred bonds of citizenship and the privilege and duty of the ballot and beyond that the imposed duty of the defense of all these, when imperilled, even unto death.

True patriotism is unselfish. It does not crave rewards, it does not permit itself to be chained by party ties or to be confined within party lines, it is willing to be sacrificed as well as to sacrifice.

Says Caird: "There have been men, who have felt in their country's annihilation and loss a far sharper pang than in any personal suffering, and the offering up of life itself has had a strange sweetness in it, if that sacrifice could avert or retrieve her ruin."

Think of the dying cry of William of Orange—"My God, my God have mercy on me and on my poor people." Or of that of the younger Pitt, dying after the victory of Napoleon at Austerlitz—"My Country, oh My Country." Or of John Hampden, dying of a wound—"O Lord save my bleeding country."

Of the love of patriotism you may say in the language of the song—"The flashes thereof are flashes of fire, a very flame of the Lord. Many waters cannot quench this love, neither can the floods drown it. It is strong as death and cruel as the grave."

It is not loud and vehement, it does not brawl, nor clamor nor harangue, it does not rail nor rave—but it acts and surrenders even unto death.

"Thou art not to reason why, Thou art not to do and die." Glorious, beautifying, "ennobling patriotism!"

d. Examples.

That these abstract ideas are capable of substantial realization the world's history proves throughout. The flame has not been sputtering low in the socket but has flared up brightly, whenever the occasion demanded it. Leonidas at Thermopylae, Arnold Von Winkelreid at Sempach, William Tell in the Swiss Austrian struggle, Bruce at Bannockburn, Hofer at Innsbruck, Garibaldi at Caprera and hundreds of other immortal names tell their own story, ever eloquent with truth. Joshua at Ajalon, Deborah and Barak in the valley of Megiddo, the lamments of Jecmiah, the career of Simon the Maccabee; Paul who wished himself accused from Christ if by any means he might benefit Israel; Christ who loved his country and people and the Holy City with an intense patriotism; Israel the phantom-nation of history still walling the words of my text, from every country in the world—all these show that the elect people were enthused with this holy flame and that its light is unquenchable.

The Lacedaemonians were taught from early infancy that, "each man was born not for himself, but for his country." And the immortal words of Lord Nelson, in the immortal battle of Trafalgar—"England expects every man to do his duty," are a brief compendium of the duty of patriotism living in every heart and but waiting for the sublime moment, when the sentiment and the occasion will meet; and when the spark of the impact will set afire the inflammable material, gathered by years of patient waiting and patient development.

Need I remind you, who are mostly Hollanders, of that incomparable example of heroism, exhibited by our own people in the struggle of the 80 years war; and of the illustrious issue of that struggle in the breaking down of the towering mass of the Spanish empire; and of the new life of liberty, which beginning in the free institutions of the Republic of the United Netherlands has become the beacon light of freedom for all later times?

Or need I point to that other struggle, now going on in South Africa, where our kinsmen are exhibiting that same undaunted spirit of patriotism; crushed down by an overwhelming force, their country devastated, their families ruined and scattered, their brethren by the thousands in exile and captivity; their broad plains and mountain ranges dotted with the unmarked graves of thousands of heroes, stifled with the smoke of lyddite-bombs and torn by explosive bullets, the remnant driven to and fro like a seared leaf is driven by the November wind—and yet continuing the apparently hopeless struggle, crippling the resources of England and undermining its vast ramparts of strength like their forefathers exhausted and crippled Spain, in the grey past. And why?

Because this flame of patriotism which animates the British and the Boer alike, will not suffer the bitter struggle to cease, till either party, by untold sacrifices, has saved the name and saved the flag the emblem of the fatherland, from ruin and dishonor.

II. And now I come to the more concrete and specific portion of my discourse.

What is the relation between Memorial day and Patriotism?

I said that the aim of the institution of this day was to inculcate patriotism.

What then are the specific thoughts which this idea presents?

a. A true conception of our American life.

Where in all the wide world is there a country like ours? I say it without a vestige of boastfulness. In America God permitted the full realization of many past ideals; in its history he has put to shame many of the proud prophets of the old world and not a few of our own.

He to whom the fathers at Philadelphia in our "Declaration of Independence," and to whom most of our individual state constitutions ascribe the sovereignty, which they withhold from any man, whole breath is in his nostrils.—He has made America great.

He laid the foundation of our greatness by slightly changing the course of Columbus, the discoverer of these shores, and thus saved us from the fate of South America.

In this vast country he welded together fragments of almost all the nations of the world into one magnificent whole, of which the strength has been tested by stupendous crises in our history.

The assimilative capacity of America is, till this day, the source of the world's endless wonder.

b. A second object of these memorial services is therefor the creation of an enthusiastic American spirit.

What do I mean by it?

Faith in ourselves, as a nation, divinely planted and divinely led, serving some great and as yet not fully developed divine purpose.

It is God, who pulls the cradle cord of the nations. He also digs their graves.

We, who deny all human sovereignty honor the divine sovereignty. Our popular rights are vested in His divine will, as we attest in our state documents and in all the acts of our official life.

Our popular sovereignty is unlike the Atheistic type of the French revolution; we exercise it, because, as we acknowledge in our declaration of independence, it is God-bestowed.

And our American enthusiasm and patriotism will be intense in ratio to the appreciation of what we mean, when we say on the face of the dollars, we strike from our mints—"In God we trust."

Here, as no where else in the world, our patriotism will be guided and controlled by the depth of that religious spirit, which controlled our fathers in the war of the revolution and which has characterized the lives of our noblest leaders and heroes and our most illustrious statesmen.

It makes for good citizenship, for indomitable energy, for unconquerable courage, for the maintenance of those institutions and traditions without which our history as a nation must end in darkness and ultimate failure.

c. We must heed therefore the lessons of the past.

Tell me, my friends, who was it that caused England, in the closing years of the 18th Century, to make such a series of stupendous blunders as made the revolution of the American colonies inevitable and their loss certain? God.

It was He, who mustered the hosts for the battle and crushed the flower of the British army, by a handful of undisciplined but indomitably courageous patriots.

The variegated elements of our colonial history were welded by the hammer-strokes of that war of the revolution into a homogeneous whole.

Listen to Patrick Henry—"British oppression has effaced the boundaries of the several colonies; the distinction between Virginians, Pennsylvanians, New Yorkers and New Englanders are no more. I am not a Virginian, but an American."

See George Washington refuse all pecuniary considerations, when appointed commander in chief of the American army. "He would take no pay. He would keep an exact account of his expenses and those, he doubted not, would be discharged."

In that heroic spirit the fathers of the revolution, without arms, ammunition, money or navy braved the foremost among the powers of the earth. And they finally conquered and laid the broad foundations of our mighty American commonwealth.

But the tree, planted in virgin soil, slowly expanding its branches, under which the nations of the world sought shelter, needed the pruning knife.

We were united, yet not fully amalgamated.

The past wrought in the present; two principles, distinct and mutually destructive, developed side by side. The body politic was torn by the forces of centralization and decentralization.

The disease, which had destroyed the Dutch republic, threatened the American commonwealth. Sectionality was rife among the states. God's remedy was war. By blood the mighty stones of our national life had to be cemented together.

Again the Lord of hosts mustered the hosts to the battle. The Cavalier spirit of the South and the Puritan spirit of the North engaged in a deadly struggle. Slavery was but an incident in the issues at stake. Way down, on the deep bed rock of the matter, lay two different views of life, two different conceptions of government, two different ideals of statehood. It was a bloody contest between the idea of the Union and that of the Confederacy. The massing of cloudbanks on the distant horizon had told of the coming clash since 1850. Higher and higher they rose, the thunder rumbled and the lightning flashed, the clouds hid the splendor of the sun and in 1860 the cyclone burst in all its fury.

ty-two slave traders on the African coasts and of these 22—God have mercy upon us, 21 were American ships.

The battle of the pen had preceded the battle of the sword. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" created a frenzy of antagonism. Whittier's "Stanzas for the Times" raised the fury to white heat. To the question whether people should keep silence, when such deeds were wrought he answered:

"No, by each spot of haunted ground,
Where freedom weeps her children's fall,
By Plymouth rock and Bunker's mound
By Griswold's stained and shattered wall,
By Warren's ghost and Langdon's shade
By all the memories of our dead."

"By their enlarging souls, which burst
The bands and fetters round them set,
By the free pilgrim-spirit, nursed
Within our latest bosoms, yet—
By all above and all below,
Be ours the indignant answer—No."

The advantage was with the South. It was organized and equipped and it was all united. The treason of John B. Floyd had armed the confederacy with the weapons and ammunition of the Union. The North, though stronger, had a widely scattered population, it harbored a host of traitors, who were ready to stab its soldiers in the back, the administration was paralyzed for the time being and whilst the South advanced to the struggle, the North was unprepared and in confusion. Then came the booming of the guns of Fort Sumter, April 12, 1861, and the gates of hell were flung wide.

As by magic the North became united, a holy enthusiasm for the preservation of the Union made itself felt, patriotism spoke. You my veteran friends, answered the call and some of you bear in your bodies the marks of the contest more honorable far than the finest decorations of king or emperor. Paul could say:—I hear in my body the marks of Christ.—You can say—"I bear in my body the marks of patriotism."

Therefore we honor and love you. Oh the bravery of those weary years, of the great struggle; the anguish and the pain, the tears and broken hearts the lies sundered and the bleak harvest of the mighty reaper—death!

But what if it finally loaded the Union with a debt of $600,000,000, to achieve the ideal, its patriotism had pictured to itself; what if it cost the nation half a million of lives; what if hearts were broken and eyes blinded by tears—was not the prize worthy the cost?

And therefore we place flowers next Thursday on the graves of our dead heroes, who gave their own lives that the country might live.

The bonny boys in blue and the bonny boys in gray, the strong men in the flower of their strength, who left us never to come home again, whose lives were crushed out by the hissing minnie-bullet or the shrieking bursting shell, or the cruel hoot of galloping horses, who died in the hospital, by the wilderness, in the trenchment, on the field of carnage, in prison.

Do I exaggerate? Before your eyes, my veteran friends rises the bloody tumultuous picture, you hear again the awful yell of the charging foe, you smell the smoke of battle, you feel the pain around the heart as the battle is on, the reckless wildness of spirit as it advances, the exultation as it is won.

To us it is a painting,—to you dire reality. At last the war was over. At Appomatox the sword had fallen from the enervated grasp of the Confederacy, the Union was saved.

Lincoln's words were like a mollifying ointment to a rankling wound. "With malice towards none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right, let us strive to finish the work we are in, to bind up the nation's wounds, to care for him who shall have born the battle and for his widow and orphan, to do all, which may achieve and cherish a just and a lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations." At last patriotism had been awarded; peace had come and the united nation sang its praises.

"Lo the clouds roll away, they break thy fly,
And like the glorious light of summer, cast
O'er the wide landscape from the embracing sky
On all the peaceful world, the smile of heaven Shall lie."

If we pay millions of dollars in pensions to the veterans of the rebellion, it is better to bear the burden of peace than the burden and continuous threat of war, which the victory of Confederacy would have imposed on us.

The success of the rebellion would have hemmed in the Union between two naturally allied and naturally hostile powers—The South and England. Our American history would have been aborted, our ideal unstained, our glory would have departed from us. The cry of the human cattle would have continued to ascend to Jehovah's throne.

Before the war we were States of the Union, now we are a Union of States; then decentralization preponderated, now centralization; then we boasted in our position as free states, now in that of a free people. Patrick Henry's ideal was realized only in the victory of the Union over the Confederacy.

Since then the banner has ascended higher, the world from wonderment has come to dread, the clutch of our power is on the throat of the world's commerce, the great nations have respectively assigned us a seat in the world's councils.

At the cry of the distressed we have crushed the remnant of the world-power of Spain and have hammered her fleets into wrecks, both at Manila and Santiago, and have compelled her armies to surrender in battle.

The occasion proved that the spirit of American patriotism is still at white heat.

What the Jewish poet said by the rivers of Babylon we say as a people—"If I forget thee O Jerusalem let my right hand forget its cunning, let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth! If I remember thee not, if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy."

Let the occasion once more arise, let the demand again be made and the flames of patriotism will leap on high again. The united North and South, the whole of this great people, strong in the sense of its unity, strong for the right as we see it, will willingly make the sacrifice, patriotism demands and thousands of our men and boys, aye of our women and maidens, will show that they prefer Jerusalem above their chief joy.

"Our fathers God to thee
Author of liberty
To thee we sing,
Long may our land be bright
With freedom's glorious light,
Protect us by thy might,
Great God, our King."

And bow, my veteran friends, I must bring my remarks to a close. Allow me to thank you for the honor you conferred upon me by once again assigning to me the privilege of preparing this Memorial sermon. Your ranks are thinning out, you are dropping away one by one, like the sear leaves in the Autumn.

The day is not far distant, when this occasion will be wholly memorial. My text speaks of an ineffable love for Jerusalem, but back of the earthly stands the heavenly. You loved the Union and you showed it in the past by shouldering your muskets.

Do you love that other country well enough to do the same? Some of you have enlisted under the banner of Christ. Some of you have not.

From the dim past come to some of you the sounds of prayer, of a pious father of a loving praying mother. In that other war only young and strong men were accepted, in this the old and the feeble can enlist. I stand before you today as a recruiting officer of Christ, tell me, if you have not enlisted yet will you do so today?

This battle, even in your old age, may be harder far than those of old; for "he that conquers himself is stronger than he that takes a city."

I say once again, what I said years ago to you—"I dare not blind you, as a minister of Christ, with false hopes and false estimates. War is no creed, enlistment no faith, wounds do not entitle to heaven."

This patriotism, of which I speak, demands faith in Christ, absolute self-surrender.

The sun is setting for most of you. The stars are shining. A little while longer and the bugle will sound—"lights out."

Are you ready? Have you got your marching-orders? Have you Christ? Then, but then alone in the fullest sense you can lift up your eyes on high and say—"If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget its cunning. Let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth, if I remember thee not, if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy." Amen.

FIX THE NATION'S POWER

The Supreme Court Justices Hand Down Their Decision in the Insular Cases.

ADMINISTRATION'S POLICY IS UPHELD.

Territory May Be Acquired by War or Treaty Without Becoming Part of the United States—Opinions Make Clear Status of America Toward New Possessions.

Washington, May 28.—The United States supreme court Monday handed down opinions covering all of the issues on the new insular possessions which have been in controversy. Although several of the decisions upheld the contestants on certain issues raised, yet in the most important decision, that of Downes against Bidwell, Justice Brown announced the sweeping decision of the court upholding the general attitude and policy of the government up to the present time.

Congress Has Power.

The effect of this decision is to confirm the constitutionality of the Foraker act and to give congress power to deal with the newly acquired territory in such manner as the legislative branch may consider suitable for the new territory. The decision also had the effect of declaring that the new insular possessions do not by virtue of the treaty of cession acquire all the privileges and rights of the constitution.

Briefly summarized, the decision settles the following points:

1. That the island of Porto Rico is a territory, appurtenant and belonging to the United States, but not a part of the United States within the revenue clause of the constitution.
2. That the Foraker act is constitutional so far as it imposes duties upon imports from Porto Rico.
3. That the constitution is applicable to territories acquired by purchase or conquest only and so far as congress shall so direct.
4. That power to acquire territory by treaty implies not only the power to govern such territory, but to prescribe upon what terms the United States shall receive its inhabitants and what their status shall be.
5. That it is doubtful if congress would ever assent to the annexation of territory upon the conditions that its inhabitants, however foreign they may be to our habits, traditions and modes of life, shall become citizens of the United States.
6. That the inhabitants of the new possessions, even if regarded as aliens, are entitled under the principles of the constitution to be protected in life, liberty and property.
7. That large powers are necessarily intrusted to congress in dealing with these problems and that abuse of these powers would receive quick rebuke at the hands of the people.
8. That duties collected under the Dingley tariff act on Porto Rican products were collected wrongfully and must be refunded, as that law applies only to foreign countries.
9. The right of the government to collect duties on Philippine products is extinguished.

Are Subject to Tax.

Washington, May 29.—The treasury officials discussed with much interest Tuesday the decisions of the supreme court Monday in the insular cases and the conclusion has been reached that nothing in these decisions is conclusive upon the government to change its administration of the customs laws as to the Philippine islands, and, therefore, duties will continue to be collected on imports from those islands as heretofore and until the court shall have decided specifically that the islands are in the same situation with respect to the United States as Porto Rico.

SENATORS RESIGN.

Messrs. Tillman and McLaurin Give Up Their Seats in the Senate from South Carolina.

Charleston, S. C., May 27.—The fierce political war between Senators Tillman and McLaurin reached a climax Saturday, when both sent to Gov. McSweeney their resignations as United States senators. Each announces that he will go before the primary for reelection. The resignations will take effect September 15. This is the second instance in the history of the senate that two members of that body have resigned and appealed for vindication to the voters of their state. In 1881 Senators Conkling and Platt resigned from New York, and neither was re-elected.

Kills a Peacemaker.

Kingston, N. Y., May 25.—Frank Heroy, son of a Methodist clergyman, shot and killed Charles Vanderlyn, at Greenfield. Heroy was drunk and abusing his uncle, James Heroy, an aged cripple. His mother asked Vanderlyn to interfere. Heroy resented Vanderlyn's action and, getting a shotgun, took deliberate aim and fired. Then he surrendered himself.

Bottle Bears Sad Message.

London, May 24.—A bottle which was picked up at Granton Thursday contained a message saying that the steamer Croft, with all hands, was sinking in mid-Atlantic. The British steamer Croft, of the Arrow line, laden with grain and general merchandise, sailed from New York January 25, 1899, for Leith and Dundee with a crew of 25 men and was never again heard of.

Census of Australia.

Melbourne, Australia, May 28.—The new census returns give the population of Australasia at 4,550,651. This is an increase of 740,756 since the last enumeration.

Mother and Son Perish.

Hatley, Idaho, May 28.—Fire in the residence of Rev. I. T. Osborne, two miles north of here, resulted in the death of Mrs. Osborne and her young son.

DIED SUDDENLY.

Ex-Gov. John R. Tanner, of Illinois, Stricken with Rheumatism of the Heart in Springfield.

Springfield, Ill., May 24.—John Riley Tanner, late governor of Illinois, and for many years one of the leading politicians of the state, died suddenly yesterday afternoon in his rooms in the Leland hotel. Rheumatism of the heart is assigned as the cause of death. He leaves a widow and a son and daughter.

John Riley Tanner, thirty-first governor of Illinois, was born on a farm in Warlick county, Ind., on April 4, 1844. Shortly after the day of his birth the family moved to Missouri, and in 1853 to Illinois, settling near Carbondale. When the war broke out Tanner enlisted and served until the end.

EX-GOV. JOHN R. TANNER.

When he left the army he settled in Clay county, where he bought 60 acres of land and went to farming. In 1870 he was elected sheriff, in 1872 county clerk, and in 1880 was elected state senator. In 1886 Mr. Tanner was elected state treasurer, serving two years. President Harrison made him sub-treasurer in Chicago, which position he held until 1894, when he was elected governor.

The governor's first wife died in 1887, leaving two children, a boy and a girl. The boy, Col. J. Mack Tanner, graduated from Knox college in 1891, and, on his father's election as governor, became his private secretary. The daughter is married to ex-Representative John A. Barnes, now of Chicago. The governor, in December, 1898, married again, his second wife being Miss Cora Edith English, a resident of Springfield and popular in the social circles of that city.

Springfield, Ill., May 27.—With all the pomp of a military funeral the remains of ex-Gov. John R. Tanner were laid to rest yesterday afternoon in Oak Ridge cemetery, almost within the shadow of the Lincoln monument. The casket was covered with a large silken flag and with beautiful floral offerings. The funeral was the most largely attended ever known in Springfield, with the exception of that of President Lincoln in 1865.

DE WET AN ENIGMA.

Invasion of Cape Colony by the Boer Leader Puzzles the British and Threatens Supplies.

London, May 24.—Though the war office officials profess to see nothing alarming in the new Boer invasion of Cape Colony, to the unbiased observer it is apparent that De Wet, by the present disposition of his forces, threatens all railway lines leading to Pretoria, effectively cutting off communication between Gen. Lord Kitchener at Pretoria and any possible base of supplies he may have on the sea coast.

It is also clear that the British do not know where De Wet is, they having reported him both at the Zuurburg mountains and at Botha's pass, with not enough interval of time between the reports to admit of his having traveled the distance between those points.

Cape Town, May 28.—A party of the queen's mounted infantry laid an ambush for the Boers at Amersfort, Transvaal, and was itself defeated.

London, May 28.—The Times publishes the following from Cradock, dated May 27: "Kritzinger's invaders of Cape Colony captured a British post of 41 men near Maraisburg after a stout resistance."

Pretoria, May 28.—Advices received from Lord Kitchener announce that since May 20 the British columns report 63 Boers killed, 36 wounded, 267 prisoners and 83 surrendered.

Pretoria, May 29.—A lyddite shell accidentally exploded, killing Boer Gen. Schoeman and his daughter and injuring several others.

The Hague, May 29.—European representatives of the Boer republic are reported to have made formal application to the arbitration court to decide the issues involved in the Transvaal war.

Steamer Sinks.

Burlington, Ia., May 28.—The Diamond Joe packet Dubuque, south-bound, struck a rock 18 miles north of here and sank in five feet of water in half a minute. Fifty passengers were on board. There were no fatalities.

Date for Yacht Race.

New York, May 28.—The Royal Ulster Yacht club has called the New York Yacht club an approval of September 21 as the day for the opening contests in the cup races and that date is finally and definitely fixed.

Chief Haasen Resigns.

New York, May 28.—William P. Haasen, chief agent of the United States secret service bureau, with headquarters in this city, has tendered his resignation to the government authorities, to take effect on June 12 next.

Three Persons Cremated.

Waukegan, Ill., May 29.—Mrs. Mary Hershberger and her daughter and grandchild were burned to death in a farmhouse near here.

Not Lost.

Milwaukee, May 28.—The schooner C. H. Hackley, supposed to have been lost with her crew in Lake Michigan, has arrived here.

BIG STORM ON THE LAKES

One of the Most Disastrous Known in Many Years Sweeps Over the Inland Seas

LARGE STEAMER SINKS IN LAKE HURON.

Twelve Lives, Including the Captain and His Wife, Are Lost—Full Extent of the Gale Not Yet Known—Many Vessels Stranded and Some Are Completely Wrecked.

Chicago, May 25.—In a storm that lashed the waters of the upper lakes the steamer Baltimore was sent to the bottom of Lake Huron, near Au Sable, Mich., Friday morning, and of her crew of 14 men only two escaped. Lashed to a heavy raft, the two men were adrift on the lake under heavy seas all day Friday, and one of them was crazy when rescued.

Names of the Victims.

The following lost their lives with the wreck of the Baltimore:

Capt. M. H. Place, master of the steamer, Cleveland; Mrs. M. H. Place, wife of captain; stewardess: Michael Breaden, first mate; John Delders, second steward; Edward Owen, wheelman; C. W. Sears, wheelman; George W. Scott, watchman; Herbert Wining, watchman; P. Marouzzi, chief engineer, Chicago; William Barker, fireman; P. Krueger, fireman; August Anderson, deck hand.

Many Vessels Wrecked.

The full extent of death and disaster by the storm is not known yet. From Chicago to Ogdensburg, N. Y., the storm held away and a score of vessels were sunk, wrecked, or suffered serious damage. The reports received from ports on the lakes told only of disasters in their immediate vicinity, and it is feared that other wrecks, with fatalities, occurred at isolated places along the shores. Anxiety is felt for vessels in mid-lake, which could find no shelter from the gale's fury.

A drill and a scow broke away from the tug Columbia, near East Tawas. Six men aboard the drill were picked up later, but the scow was lost. The Columbia picked up the two survivors of the Baltimore.

Six Hundred Lives in Peril.

The sidewheel steamer Empire State, with 600 excursionists aboard, sprung a leak 12 miles out from Ogdensburg, N. Y. The water put out the fires, and the vessel just made shore when it sank in eight feet of water. There was a panic aboard, but the officers maintained order, and few of the passengers realized the extent of their peril until the vessel reached the beach.

The schooner H. D. Moore, laden with hardwood, collided with the pier at Sheboygan, Wis. Masts and rigging were carried away and the crew was taken off. The vessel is at anchor, but leaking and pounding hard.

The fishing tug Constance was cut in two and sunk in collision with the steamer C. W. Moore in the river near Menominee, Mich. The crew escaped.

The schooner Montgomery is ashore on Charity island, near Bay City, Mich., and may prove a total loss. The cargo is being removed.

The steamer St. Louis and two barges are aground on the head of Strawberry island, near Buffalo, N. Y. The schooner Sailor sunk at the Buffalo docks.

At all ports on the lakes many vessels put in for shelter. Many that had started out met the gale and turned back. The storm was declared by marine men one of the worst in 15 years.

Probably Drowned.

Racine, Wis., May 29.—Ten miles northeast of Milwaukee, bottom up and waterlogged, lies the three-masted schooner, H. Rand, of Racine, wrecked by the gale over Lake Michigan last Friday. Three men and a woman, who were on the boat, are supposed to be dead. They are: Capt. Jefferson, of Racine; his daughter, Daisy Jefferson, aged 27 years, cook of the vessel; Harry Lucas, of Milwaukee, and Frank Seabert, of Sheboygan, sailors.

PEOPLE MARRY OLDER.
 Some Interesting Matrimonial Facts Gleaned at a Missouri County Courthouse.

Ages given in marriage licenses in the recorder's office show that men and women are marrying later in life than ten or twenty years ago. The average age, says the Kansas City Journal, is considerably above that of ten years ago, and very much above that of 20, 30 or 40 years ago. Formerly it was the rule rather than the exception for brides to be 17 or 18 and grooms 20 or 21. Now it is almost reversed. Figures for several months show that the average bride's age is between 25 and 26 and the groom's between 28 and 29.

The average of the first six couples applying for license at the recorder's office on a recent day was 33½ for the men and 32 for the women. When the number of couples had reached nine the figures were reduced to 30 for the men and 28 for the women. These figures, however, are not a good criterion, the couples applying that day happening to be a little older than ordinarily. Figures also indicate that couples marrying in May are younger on the average than those marrying in the fall of the year.

"I don't know to what to attribute the tendency to marry later in life," said the marriage license clerk, "unless it is that it takes the young man longer to get a start in the world than it did 20 or 30 years ago. The country is more developed, there are not so many opportunities open to him, and he must wait longer before he finds himself in a position that would warrant his taking the responsibility of supporting a family. In other words, men no longer marry young because they can't afford it."

COOK ISLANDS ANNEXED.
 Great Britain Takes Formal Possession of Them at the Request of the Chiefs.

On October 3, last, the governor of New Zealand landed on the Cook Islands and formally annexed them to the British empire at the unanimous request of the chiefs and people. For 19 years the islands have been under the protection of Great Britain and every enactment of the native legislature has had to receive the approval of the British resident at Rarotonga before being regarded as law. But there has never been any formal annexation of the group and the natives are probably delighted to have that ceremony carried out.

The islands, lying far southeast of Samoa, are off the usual lines of steamship traffic, and most of their trade is carried on with New Zealand and New South Wales. They properly bear the name of the great navigator Cook, for he discovered the greater part of the group on his second journey in 1773, and made them better known in his voyage of 1777. Cook named one of the islands Hervey island, and the missionaries who settled there somehow got into the habit of applying the name Hervey to the whole group, and to-day they are called indifferently, the Cook or Hervey islands.

All of them are coral islands, lifted only a little way above the sea level, except Rarotonga, the largest and most populous, whose volcanic mountain rises to a height of 4,000 feet. Rarotonga is one of the pearls of the South seas, and is rich in all the products of the southern archipelagoes. The natives have long used cotton cloth as money, but coin is now likely to be introduced.

COMMON CACTUS.
 One That Lived Seven Years Under a Sealed Glass Case in Berlin.

One of the commonest of cacti in gardens is the Echinopsis multiplex, a small subglobose species, with five or six sharp ribs, and sparsely sprinkled with a few clusters of long, black spines on the sharp edges of the ribs. It sends up occasionally a large, white tubular flower, which, like so many of the family, opens at night and soon withers away. In Germany a druggist named Ludwig Rust placed a specimen under a sealed glass seven years ago, and it is said to be yet in a "thriving condition," to the surprise of the scientific men of Berlin, who are puzzled to know where it obtains its carbonic acid from. Many suggestions are advanced as to the source of this element. So far as the published account goes, however, there is no indication that the specimen was weighed before it was encased or weighed after its seven years of entombment—no evidence, it may be said, that any carbonic acid was absorbed. It is just as likely to be a case of dormancy. It is now well understood that in the absence of exciting causes dormancy in vegetation may be retained indefinitely.

Woman's Club in Honolulu.
 Unique among women's clubs, perhaps, is that which was launched five years ago in Honolulu and is now reported to be at last on a firm footing. It was started by an American school teacher, who was wont to invite young women to her home once a week for informal conversation on some topic. The outgrowth was a full-fledged club of 34 members, most of them being Hawaiians, with a mixture, however, of Chinese and Portuguese. The president this year is a Chinese girl, who wears her quaint national costume when she fills the official chair.

Occupations for Women.
 The seven occupations open to women in 1839 were teaching, needlework, keeping boarders, factory working, typesetting, bookkeeping and domestic service. Four hundred are open to them to-day.

HE HAD NEWS FOR HER.

The Talk Went on While the House Was Burning.

"I tell you it ain't safe for a man to leave home nowadays," grumbled the man-on-the-corner to another man, according to the Detroit Free Press. "Since my wife got mixed up with so many clubs—art clubs, musical clubs, kindergarten coteries, and the like, she has so much to attend to and so much to talk about to other women that she actually forgets that she has any domestic responsibilities. My wife told me last night that she was sitting in our library early in the morning, deeply immersed in club conversation with an intimate friend, and they heard the doorbell ring. She knew that the cook was very busy, and the second mail was out on an errand, but she was so absorbed in her club talk that she decided not to answer the bell herself. Again it rang with some emphasis, so then she went to the shutters and looked out, only to see at the door the back of a roughly-dressed man. She concluded that he was only a peddler or a beggar, and went back to her profoundly intellectual friend. A third time the doorbell rang, and this time with energetic and sustained violence. "Goodness, hear that man," my wife said to the other club lady; 'Nora is out, and I'll have to go and see what he wants, or he will break the bell.' So to the door she hastened, feeling very indignant with the peddler who was so persistently disturbing her peace. She opened the door prepared to discharge a volley of rebuke on the man's offending head, but forgot all about it when he said, excitedly: "Well, missus, yald better be answerin' this bell—I came in to tell yer that the back part of yer house is on fire."

GOOD IDEA TO BORROW.

It Is That of Having an Official Drafter of Bills.

One of the minor features of the English legislative system might with propriety and profit be reproduced in the state and national legislatures of America, says the Kansas City Journal. Every measure, before it is brought before the house of commons, is submitted to the examination of the official drafter of bills. This official is a man well versed in the history of law and lawmaking, a constitutional lawyer of high rank. He examines the bill, points out anything in it that is in conflict with the constitution, elucidates obscurities and indicates omissions and redundancies. More than that, he will, on request, draft any measure which a member may desire to bring before the house.

The result of this is a wonderful economy of the time of the parliament and of the courts. Unconstitutional bills are often killed by the hand of the bill drafter, and all measures submitted to the legislative body are clear in import and full, yet concise, in form. We need something of this kind here. Excellent measures are not seldom the offspring of the brains of men who are not trained constitutional lawyers, and they fail of enactment, or of enforcement if enacted, on account of technical blemishes which might easily be removed. The records of our legislators and courts are full of the obituarities of such laws. The appointment of a capable drafter of bills to aid legislators in the preparation of prospective laws would enable each measure to stand or fall squarely on its merits, irrespective of considerations merely technical.

SHE WAS TRUSTFUL.

Never Thought of the Man's Honesty Until She Had Her Hat.

A middle-aged woman came through the gate at one of the railway stations the other afternoon with a crowd of passengers from a train which had just arrived, says the Washington Post. She wore a gray gown and she carried a small bag; a fur cape hung over her arm, but her head was bare. She did not remember the fact until she had passed the wicket. Suddenly she clasped her hand to her head.

"Good gracious!" she exclaimed, "Here, hold these!" and flinging the bag and cape into the hands of an astonished young man, who happened to be standing near, she plunged through the crowd and ran back to the train. Presently she emerged, her hat on her head, a smile of perfect content on her face, a smile which failed the moment she set foot on the platform again. She fairly galloped through the gate, and looked wildly about for her fur cape and her traveling bag. The astonished-looking young man was still waiting for them. The middle-aged woman, who had sensed herself of her belongings, gave a sigh of relief. "My land," she said, "suppose you b' said, with feeling, the crowd a' 'dn't be honest!" and allowed her up.

Leprosy in France.

At the international congress of leprosy, which has just been brought to a conclusion at Berlin, the startling fact was elicited that the disease is very prevalent in France, especially in the northern district thereof, and that it is on the increase. This discovery and the data furnished by the French medical authorities contributed in no small measure to the resolution voted by the congress to the effect that leprosy is contagious.

Where Waves Are Largest.

The largest waves are seen off Cape Horn, rising to 46 feet in height, and 765 feet long from crest to crest. Waves in the north Atlantic have been observed to rise 43 feet in height. In the German ocean their height does not exceed 13½ feet, and in the Mediterranean 14½ feet.

Roquefort Cheese.

It is estimated that over 6,000 farmers and others in France make their living by the manufacture of Roquefort cheese. Formerly the value of the product of this cheese every year was $5,000,000, but lately the demand for it has much decreased.

Nerve Influence

Is the subtle force which controls the different organs of the body. It makes them strong or weak, healthy or diseased, according as the brain and nerves are strong and vigorous or weak and diseased. Weak nerves cause headache, nervousness, neuralgia, indigestion, heart trouble and many other forms of chronic weakness. Make the nerves strong, the brain clear and active and the body will be healthy and vigorous.

"I was taken with a peculiar ailment that affected my head and my nerves were all unstrung. I was very nervous, could not sleep and my mind was all confused. I doctored for several weeks without getting better and then began taking Dr. Miles' Nervine. The first bottle relieved me so much that I kept on, and when I had used seven bottles I was well."
 Mrs. C. SCHROEDER, Metropolis, Ills.

Dr. Miles' Nervine

soothes and rests the tired brain, strengthens the nerves and supplies the nerve influence that is so necessary to build up health of body and vigor of mind. Try it.

FIRST WOMEN TO CROSS.

Wives of Two Missionaries Made the Trip Before Fremont.

In the Ladies' Home Journal George Ludington Weed writes of "When Dr. Whitman Added Three Stars to Our Flag," and shows conclusively that a party of five people, including two women, crossed the Rocky mountains at South pass in 1836, six years prior to Fremont's crossing. Concerning this interesting historical incident Mr. Weed writes: "The first wedding tour across the continent was in 1836. There were two couples, Marcus Whitman, M. D., and Rev. H. H. Spaulding and their brides. They made the journey of 3,500 miles, occupying seven months, in a wagon, the first to cross the continent. Dr. Whitman, having visited the region before, was guide to the new home in Oregon. He was the first to make known its value to the United States. South pass is reached," writes Mr. Weed of the famous journey, "the highest plateau, the divide of the continent. In the pass the traveler reads the inscription: 'Fremont, 1842.' All honor due to the 'Pathfinder,' but also to the two heroines who had gone through six years before his claimed discovery. Let another inscription read: 'Mrs. Whitman and Mrs. Spaulding, 1836.'"

"It is the Fourth of July. The party pauses in its journey. Patriotic words are spoken as the Bible and flag are taken from the wagon. The one is laid on a blanket spread upon the grass; the other is raised over all. The kneeling company offers prayer and praise and reverently takes possession of the region beyond 'in the name of God and of the United States.' The only human witnesses to the scene are the two Nez Perce lads who witnessed the Whitman wedding ceremony at Angelica, N. Y., immediately preceding the start for Oregon."

BOVINE MORALS CORRUPTED.

Catskill Cows Taught by Deer to Leap Fences.

Ever since the deer were released from the State park in the Catskill mountains several years ago they have been more or less of a nuisance. The law prohibits the deer from being shot for five years, and game protectors are kept busy at a large cost looking after alleged violations of this law, says an eastern exchange.

In the State park the herd of deer was cared for and fed so long that the animals became quite tame. When they were liberated from the park they had to be driven away to get rid of them. Then the large herd soon separated, and the deer became lonely and sought the society of the cows on the surrounding farms.

Ever since the liberation of the deer farmers throughout the Catskills have complained that the deer, by their free and easy manner of leaping fences, have taught their cows bad habits. The cows, always tame and easily confined, have learned from association with the deer how to leap fences and cannot now be kept in pastures by any ordinary fence.

Notwithstanding that the Catskill deer are a nuisance, the farmers dare not use violence toward them, being restrained by the law.

AS GOOD AS A HOE PRESS.

Two-Hundred-Pound Hired Girl Aids in Getting Out a Paper.

Gen. Joseph S. Smith, of Maine, tells in the New York Tribune how he published a paper without a press in Bath, Me., many years ago: "When I'd get my paper all set up and ready for the press I'd lay the type on a washstand, get it leveled down well in the chase or in the frame in which it was locked up, and then I'd call in the hired girl. She weighed about 210 pounds when she sat down. That's what I wanted—sitting down weight. So, after the hired girl came in, I linked the type, laid over it the sheet of paper and on top of that the blanket, and then I politely invited the hired girl to sit down on the washstand. Two hundred and ten pounds, remember. The result was just as good."

Old Soldier's Experience.

CUBA MAKES A DECISION

Constitutional Convention by Majority of One Adopts the Platt Amendment.

RADICALS MAKE FIGHT TO THE END.

Senor Gomez Delivers Impassioned Speech and Refuses to Retract—President and Cabinet Much Gratified at Acceptance—Does Not at Present Change Status of Island.

Washington, May 29.—Secretary Root has received a cablegram from Gen. Wood, at Havana, briefly confirming the press report of the adoption by a vote of 15 yeas to 14 nays of the report of the committee on relations with the United States accepting in behalf of the convention the terms of the Platt amendment. It is not possible at this moment to secure here even an abstract of the resolutions adopted. It is understood that without undertaking materially to change the language of the Platt amendment the convention, by the addition of reports of interviews with Secretary Root and otherwise, has placed upon the amendment itself a construction that will require very serious consideration.

Secretary Root has been in daily communication by cable with Gen. Wood and is acquainted with the proceedings of the delegates and the negotiations which led up to Tuesday's action. Gen. Wood, in turn, has acquainted the constitutional delegates with the secretary's views in answer to their efforts to place a construction upon the Platt amendment. Hence the weight of opinion inclines to the belief that even as it stands the convention's action Tuesday will not be disapproved from Washington. It is suggested by the officials that there is no occasion at present for the Washington government to take action upon this matter either by accepting or rejecting the convention's work.

President Is Gratified.
Canton, O., May 29.—The president when seen on his arrival here expressed himself as being much gratified at the action of the Cuban constitutional convention Tuesday in accepting the Platt amendments, and the members of the cabinet who are expressed like sentiments. Cuba's acceptance of our terms, however, will not change her status for the present. She must hold an election and establish a government and congress will eventually be allowed to take the final action which will release her from the military control of the United States.

Next Work of Cuban Convention.
Havana, May 29.—The Cuban constitutional convention will not hold further sessions until after the municipal elections. President Capote visited Gen. Wood Wednesday to talk over the proposed election law, which will be the next work of the convention. The general intimated that the United States would ask that some changes be made in the constitution.

El Mundo says: "By the vote of Tuesday Cuba's independence and nationality were made subject to the United States. In future we shall be only a name on the map of the world."

The Convention's Session.
Havana, May 29.—The Platt amendment was accepted by the Cuban constitutional convention Tuesday by a vote of 15 to 14. The actual vote was on accepting the majority report of the committee on relations, which embodied the amendment with explanations of certain clauses.

Senor Gomez spoke for more than an hour, and his speech undoubtedly won over Senors Castro, Robau and Manduley. He appealed to the patriotism of delegates and rehearsed the long fight for independence, denouncing as perjurers all who favored the Platt amendment, on the ground that they had sworn to draw up a constitution for an independent republic. Several conservatives rose and asked Senor Gomez to retract, but he absolutely refused.

The report adopted Tuesday is put in the form of an appendix to the constitution. It begins by quoting the joint resolution of congress relating to the independence of Cuba and the first article of the treaty of Paris, gives the details of the sending of the Platt amendment to the convention, and quotes the amendment itself. Reference is made to the visit of the Cuban commission to the United States and the explanation of the meaning of the clauses of the Platt amendment by Secretary Root.

Incorporated in Constitution.
The report then continues that in view of all this the convention should add the Platt amendment to the constitution, which law is to have the meaning and interpretation as laid down in the preceding paragraphs, and also the meaning expressed in the following amendment:

"First—That the stipulations contained in clauses 1 and 2 of the Platt amendment are internal constitutional limitations which do not restrict the power of the government of Cuba to celebrate freely political and mercantile treaties with any nation, nor its powers to contract loans and debts, except with regard to its being bound and subject itself to what is established by the Cuban constitution and what is laid down in the two clauses referred to."

The second explanation deals with intervention, which, the report says, can only take place by formal action of the government of the United States, and will only be exercised to prevent the action of a foreign power over Cuba or in case of a perturbation of order capable of providing anarchy.

Third—That clause 4 of the Platt amendment refers to acts properly committed during the military occupation of the island by the Americans and the rights legally acquired by virtue of those.

Fourth—That clause 5 of the Platt amendment refers to plans for sanitation which may be mutually agreed upon between Cuba and the United States.

The fifth explanation is to the effect that Cuba will treat with the United States in regard to the ownership of the Isle of Pines, although it is believed that that island is actually comprehended within the boundaries of Cuba.

The sixth clause, which refers to coaling stations, is to the effect that these stations will be for the sole purpose of protecting Cuba and the United States against attacks by foreign powers.

ENDS ITS LABORS.
United Presbyterian General Assembly Adjourns at Des Moines After Successful Session.

Des Moines, Ia., May 29.—At the opening of the closing day of the session of the general assembly of the United Presbyterian church the committee on bills and overtures on the membership covenant reported that there was a demand for a change in the form of questions put when members are being received. The committee held, however, that none of the memorials submitted cover all the points desired and recommended that a committee of five be appointed to frame a membership covenant and submit it to the next general assembly. The recommendations were adopted and the appointment of committee referred to the committee on nomination which was instructed to publish its report not later than January 1, 1902.

The committee appointed is composed of Rev. J. T. McCrory, of Pittsburgh; Rev. E. S. McKittrick, of Los Angeles; Rev. T. H. Hanna, of Monmouth, Ill.; Rev. J. G. Kennedy, of Ohio; and Rev. C. S. Cleland, of Philadelphia. Appropriations were made as follows:

Foreign missions, $13,249; home missions, $100,550; freedman's aid, $55,000; church extension, $55,000; educational work, $8,000; educational for colleges and seminaries, $25,000; ministerial relief, $10,000; publication, $1,500.

The general assembly completed its work at noon and adjourned to meet at Allegheny, Pa., in 1902.

Stringent Oleo Law.
Harrisburg, Pa., May 29.—Gov. Stone Wednesday signed the Snyder Harris oleomargarine restriction bill. The new law regulates the manufacture and sale of butterine and similar products, forbids oleo from being colored, prevents dealers from selling oleo for butter, and makes it compulsory upon each dealer to secure a permit from the agricultural department before handling oleo. The governor also signed the bill prohibiting the publication of a drama or musical composition without the consent of the author.

Girl Strikers Grow Riotous.
New York, May 29.—The girl strikers at the handkerchief factory of Acheson, Wardner & Co., at Passaic, N. J., made a riotous demonstration Wednesday. One hundred girls reported for duty, and despite police protection several of them were roughly handled by the strikers. The latter then stoned the factory, smashing many windows. The police arrested four of the strike leaders, but lost one of them in a charge from the strikers. The strikers number over 300.

Emperor William Leads Troops.
Berlin, May 29.—Emperor William, at the annual review Wednesday of the brigade of guards on the Tempelhof field, put the troops through a series of movements. Then, at the head of the color company, he led the brigade through the city. His majesty was accompanied by a brilliant entourage, including Gen. Bonnat and the other French officers here. Subsequently the emperor lunched with the officers.

Legislature Takes a Rest.
Lansing, Mich., May 29.—Both houses of the legislature suspended business at 12:40 Wednesday after having been in continuous session since January 1. Final adjournment will be taken June 6. The general purpose appropriation bill passed Wednesday carrying $1,200,000 makes the total appropriations for the session $6,549,000, which is $85,000 less than the appropriations of the preceding legislature.

New Russian Loan Falls Through.
St. Petersburg, May 29.—News has been received from Persia that the proposed new Russian loan of 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 roubles has fallen through because the shah was unwilling to give the required security and grant the privileges requested in south Persia. British influence is blamed for the failure of the loan.

The question of securing transportation for them is a serious one. How To Gain Flesh

Persons have been known to gain a pound a day by taking an ounce of SCOTT'S EMULSION. It is strange, but it often happens.

Somehow the ounce produces the pound; it seems to start the digestive machinery going properly, so that the patient is able to digest and absorb his ordinary food, which he could not do before, and that is the way the gain is made.

A certain amount of flesh is necessary for health; if you have not got it you can get it by taking

THE OPPORTUNITY IS HERE, BACKED BY HOLLAND TESTIMONY.

Don't take our word for it. Don't depend on a stranger's statement. Read Holland endorsement. Read the statements of Holland citizens.

And decide for yourself. Here is one case of it. Mrs. M. Shonaker, 256 West 15th street says: "I suffered from constant heavy aching pains across the small of my back so that I could not rest comfortably at night in any position and during the day I felt tired and languid. The kidney secretions became badly affected, irregular, too frequent scanty, and were attended by a good deal of pain besides depositing a heavy sediment. I suffered also from headaches and spells of dizziness so that I either had to sit down or hold on to something to keep from falling. I used a great many different remedies but without obtaining any benefit. Friends advised me to use Doan's Kidney Pills and I got a box at J. O. Doesburg's drug store and used them. They helped me from the very start. They are by far the best remedy I ever tried, and I have no hesitation in recommending them."

Back in the Home State.

Ada, O., May 29.—There were big crowds at all the stations after the presidential train crossed the line into Ohio. At Lima, the first stop in the president's native state, several thousand people thronged the depot. The school children had been given a half holiday and they were marshaled by their teachers alongside of the track. A great cheer went up as the president appeared, his face wreathed in smiles at the cordiality of the reception. The train stopped only three minutes, but in that time he greeted a number of his old friends and shook hands with many of the school children.

Mrs. Hay Leaves Party. Crestline, O., May 29.—At Crestline Mrs. Hay left the train to go to Cleveland to visit her sister. The president and Secretary Hay escorted her through the crowd to her train which was waiting on the other side of the station.

Des Moines, Ia., May 29.—Charles Nell, aged 19, an employee of the Jewett typewriter factory entered the residence of J. W. Mercer at nine o'clock in the morning, drew a revolver and calmly commenced shooting at Effie Mercer, aged 13. He fired three shots, taking deliberate aim, but none took effect. He fled, but was pursued and captured. He pleaded guilty to a charge of assault with intent to do greta bodily injury and was bound over to the grand jury. The Mercers were strangers to him and no motive for his crime is apparent. He is believed to be insane, though seemingly rational.

Move to Defeat Boyce.

Denver, Col., May 29.—An agitation has begun among delegates to the annual convention of the Western Federation of Miners, now in session here, with a view to defeating Edward Boyce for reelection as president of the federation. Atlanta, Ga., May 29.—A special to the Journal from Tampa, Fla., says: Business in the little city of Bartow, Fla., is entirely suspended, the citizens of that place being engaged in a man hunt. Fred Rochelle, a negro, is the man wanted. He is charged with assaulting and murdering Mrs. Rosa Taggart, of Bartow, Tuesday. Rochelle, it is alleged, cut off Mrs. Taggart's nose, and otherwise mutilated her body. The people of Bartow openly avow that they will burn Rochelle at the stake in the public square of the town. It is believed Gov. Jennings will order out the militia to protect the negro's life if he is captured. One thousand men with dogs are in pursuit.

Weyler Explains His Plans.

Madrid, May 29.—Gen. Weyler, minister of war, at a banquet at Leon described the plans for army reorganization. He said it is proposed to establish three army corps capable of repelling any invasion without recourse to extraordinary expenditures. There will be maneuvers of the troops twice each year. The Correspondencia says: Differences exist among the ministers on the subjects of elections and the economic situation, but there is no cabinet crisis.

Machinists Walk Out.

Fort Wayne, Ind., May 29.—All machinists and helpers in the Bass foundry and machine works walked out Wednesday morning. The men have been getting three dollars for ten hours' work. They demand the same pay for nine hours' work, Saturday afternoon off, pay and a half for overtime and double pay for holidays. The strikers are 150 strong. Lake and Marine.

The history of the life-saving crews is one continuous story of bravery, courage and devotion to duty on the part of the crews, both collectively and individually. Incidents without number might be produced to show intelligent action on the part of these men in the locating of wrecks in fog and storms and the heroic attempt to save life. For a member of the service to fail to report signals of distress would be as unusual as it would be criminal.

Speaking about the loss of life in marine disasters, out of the fifty-three lives lost last year one-half of them were sacrificed by the injudicious attempts of the shipwrecked men of two vessels to escape in their own boats, instead of waiting until aid could reach them from the shore or until their situation should be demonstrated to be hopeless. Landing through the surf in heavy weather is always hazardous, and shipwrecked mariners have been warned against it time and again by the life-saving service. In the wrecks mentioned all who remained on the vessels were saved by the life-saving crews, thus proving that all might have been saved if they had remained on board. In addition to lending aid at the wrecks of large vessels, the crews perform every year many individual acts of heroism, and lend aid to the wrecks of small craft, like sailboats, rowboats etc., and of this class of vessels there were 329 casualties last year, these boats carrying 781 persons, of whom five perished in wrecks and storms.—Washington Star.

The inspectors of the life saving service for this district were here last week and as usual found everything about Captain Weckler's station in apple pie order. New rules—boys to wear blue shirts with black neckties and address one another by number or surname only.—Ludington Record.

Douglas 16. Holland High School 15.

The Holland High school club journeyed to Douglas Saturday and met a club composed of the pick of Douglas. The game was fast and furious and the boy that could not knock the ball outside of the village limits was cut off the salary list.

The Douglas club played an excellent game. They were quick in fielding and strong at the bat. The minute the first ball was pitched the High school boys realized that they were up against the real thing but they settled down to business and kept their opponents guessing until the last inning. Then with the score 15 to 12 they made three runs, tying it. But the Douglas boys had one more chance at bat and they scored the winning run making it 16 to 15.

"Tards" Ver Schure was umpire and brought the rule book into play when his decisions were questioned. Against this authority, aided by "Tards'" good judgement, the protests of the players did not avail and the game was as peaceful as a quaker meeting.

The High school showed that it has good material for a nine. In fact some of them showed that they could play in faster company and would be able to hold a place in the regularity club.

It Takes a Remedy of Uncommon Merit to Draw the Unqualified Praise of a Successful Practising Physician.

Dr. J. W. Bates of Corfu, N. Y., states: "A most remarkable case has come under my hands of late and has fully convinced me of the wonderful power of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills over diseases of the nerves."

"A young lady who was treated for over two years for epilepsy by two doctors was given up to die. I found that her sickness was not epilepsy, but nervous troubles, due to menstrual derangements, and prescribed four of Dr. Chase's Nerve Pills a day, after meals and at bed-time. Since that time she has not had a single bad spell. Her health has rapidly improved, she has gained about fifteen pounds in weight, and I do not hesitate to state that Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills have saved her life and restored her to health."

LOST MASTERPIECES.

Other Famous Paintings Besides the Gainsborough Work Have Been Stolen.

Gainsborough's Duchess of Devonshire, which will probably find its last resting place in the Metropolitan museum of art, in this city, is not the only great painting which has been stolen, says the New York Herald. A portrait of the countess of Derby disappeared shortly after it was painted by Sir Joshua Reynolds. Rewards for its return were vainly offered. The final conclusion was that the then earl of Derby, who had quarreled with his wife at the time the picture was painted, had destroyed it.

The celebrated "Flower of the Cloth of Gold" was never stolen outright, but an important part of it was extracted. The theft was discovered when Cromwell opened negotiations with a foreign dealer for the sale of some of the pictures of Charles I. On this particular picture being examined, one of the principal pieces, that of Henry VIII, was missed. It had been dexterously cut out, and upon the restoration the thief, a nobleman of note, handed it back to Charles II. in a perfect state of preservation. His object had been to prevent the picture going out of the country.

Lord Crewe has a picture which was lost and recovered in a remarkable manner. An ancestor of his had a picture painted of his son and daughter in which the son posed as Cupid. Many years afterward the father and son quarreled, and the younger man, out of revenge, caused the Cupid to be cut out of the canvas. The piece knocked about unheard of for over 100 years. A dealer who had seen an engraving of the original happened to get hold of it some few years ago, and he at once communicated with Lord Crewe.

A FAWN AT HOME.

One of the Prettiest and Pleasantest Sights in All the Wilderness.

One of the prettiest bits of animal life we have seen portrayed for a long time is in Mr. William Davenport Hulbert's article, "The Deer," in McClure's Magazine. It is a fawn which he is describing:

"To see the baby promenading up and down the shore, with his mother looking on, was one of the prettiest and pleasantest sights in all the wilderness. The ground color of his coat was a bright bay red somewhat like the summer dress which the doe wore, but deeper and richer and handsomer, and with pure white spots arranged in irregular rows all along his neck and back and sides. He was so sleek and polished that he fairly glistened in the sunshine, like a well-groomed horse; his great dark eyes were brighter than a girl's at her first ball; and his ears were almost as big as a mule's, and a million times as pretty. But best and most beautiful of all was the marvelous life and grace and spirit of every pose and motion. When he walked, his slender head and neck were thrust forward at every step with the daintiest gesture imaginable, and his tiny pointed hoofs touched the ground so lightly, and were away again so quickly, that you hardly knew what they had done. If he was startled he would stamp his fore foot on the hard sand, and toss his head in the air with an expression that was not fear, but alertness, and even defiance. And when he leaped and ran—but there's no use in trying to describe that."

THE BROOKLYN FACE.

Discovery of Wall Street Man at the Entrance of the Big Bridge.

"Have you ever been over the big bridge?" asked a Wall street man the other day.

"A few times; why do you ask?" was the reply, according to the New York Mail and Express.

"Well, I had to go over to Brooklyn the other day. First time I had crossed the bridge in years, and I made a discovery. I don't mean that I discovered the bridge, or Brooklyn, but I did find the Brooklyn face."

"Talk about the bicycle face or the automobile squint, they are not a marker to it. If you want to see it reflected on a few hundred thousand features, just take a stand between the 'L' ticket booths and the first stairway some time between five and six o'clock at night."

"As the crowds sweep to the ticket booth they appear sane and clothed in their right mind; but once the ticket is bought, the transformation begins. First a sort of hunted expression steals over the features; then the eyes are narrowed to a squint, but as the person nears the ticket chopper they gradually widen and begin to roll wildly. The teeth are firmly set, the chin tilted outward and the head is thrown forward. A slight inflation of the nostrils just before the final rush is made and all is lost in the whirling vortex on the stairway."

No More "Hullo's" in Paris.

The Paris telephone girl must not say "Hullo" any more. That is too simple and easy, so the administration has given instructions that in the future the "démouille du téléphone" must reply to those who ring her up: "I'm listening to you." If she should be so forgetful as to pronounce the banished dissyllable she will be reprimanded and punished by a fine.
